

Light Horse information

Here is some information about the Australian Light Horse Association.

The ALHA is a national association of some 650 members including riders and non-riders. For riders, you must pass a simple riding test and the joining fee is $55 per annum. For non-riders who usually dress in Light Horse uniform, the joining fee is $35 per year.

Women are most welcome to join however, this being an historical association; they must dress as men, in other words short hair / hair put up under their hat, and very little make-up.

We attend many events throughout Australia and overseas. Some recent events include Anzac Day in France and Belgium, the 90th anniversary of the Battle of Beersheba in Israel, the opening the Australian Equestrian Centre in Tamworth and the opening of the Tuncurry Racetrack.

A member of our elite association can ride in a parade, a memorial service, or cataphault party almost every weekend of the year.

We have training camps where we partake in horse drill, rifle drill, sword and lance drill. We generally camp out on these weekends usually at Singleton Army Base or a showground such as at Murrurundi. Virtually anywhere where there are warm showers and a suitable kitchen.

The Manning Valley Troop has five members, so at any one time there are at least two of us attending an event. We each own various memorabilia from World War 1 and enjoy giving talks at the local schools or service clubs such as Probus and Rotary.

We welcome new members.
